He states it would be almost impossible to get along suc-cessfully but for his good fortune in having a young French woman as his assistant and interpreter, for but little English is spoken in the section where he is working. He refers to the very cordial attitude of the comforts and cheer of the Y. M. C. A. hut, but that these are all too few, both buildings and workers, es-transportation facilities, most all supplies having to be hauled by trucks. He says, "Candy is at a premium, and when we get a few cases of chocolate or candy, it goes like hot cakes". He also rays, "If you talk to any one wanting to send money over here tell them to send of exchange, with regular postoffice money orders, express money orders and travelers' checks next. MASS OF THANKSGIVING

Rev. W. C. Robertson Preaches on Victory Achieved—Solmen Te Deum Sung as an introit.

The chief morning service at Christ church yesterday was a mass thanks, siving and praise to God for His mercy in giving to us the victory over our enomies and a righteous peace. The service began with a solemn procession about the church, in which not only the choir and the clergy, but many of the Sunday school and congregation joined. A solemn te deum was sung as an introit.

The sermon, preached by the rector.

joined. A solemn to dealist was as an introit.

The sermon, preached by the rector. Rev. W. C. Robertson, showed what a great part faith in God and in the triumph of righteousness had in bringing the victory, and what part a true conception of the faith and its meaning for us would play in the important period to come. The text was:
"This is the victory which overcometh the world, even our faith."

Not only by the sermon, but also by the character of the prayers used and of the hymns, the service was given a national and flatriotic character.

For Ex-Kaiser Suggested by Col. John B. Brownlow.

Col. John B. Brownlow.

Col. John B. Brownlow. of Knoxville, is in the city for a few days as the guest of his friend, Capt. A. J. Gahagan, on Walnut street.

Col. Brownlow says he agrees with a suggestion made by a Kentucky newspaper man that the proper punishment for the ex-kaiser would be to confine him somewhere in Central Africa in a cage, and require him every day to listen to a twelve-hour speech from Theodore Roosevelt on the subject of the crimes of the Hohenzolierns. Col. Brownlow thinks this would be fitting retribution to a ruler who has brought so much trouble to the world.

Col. Brownlow is recognized as the greatest living authority today on Tennessee history. His memory is acute, and ne has in his lifetime been intimately acquainted with many of the men best known in the annais of the state. IMPROVE DIXIE ROAD Lifting of Road Construction Ban Means improvement.

Certain highways of Tennessee, among which are the Nashville-Chattanooga stretch of the Dixie highway and the Memphis-to-Bristol road, will probably receive attention in the near future, now that the ban on road-building materials has been removed. An order from the chairman of the United States highway council to the state highway department states that all such materials, with the exception of steel, are available for construction work.

M. M. Allison, president of the Dixte highway association, is in Washington at present, being expected back about Wednesday or Thursday, when more definite information will be available. Lifting of Road Construction Ban

The people of the county have been called upon by the government and war work societies nine times since America's entrance into the great world war and on every occasion have responded with more than their allotted quota. The first liberty loan drive was brought to a successful conclusion on June 15, 1917, the county sub-scribing $2,275,000, going over her quota with a $275,000 margin.
